When it comes to buying or selling a home, having the right real estate team behind you truly makes a difference. A strong team means there is always someone available to answer questions, show homes, and keep the process moving forward - all while bringing experience and expertise to every step!

Buying or selling a home is one of the largest financial decisions you'll make, which is why we believe a team approach provides added value. Dave and Taylor are top-producing Realtors, with Taylor serving as the lead agent and your main point of contact throughout the transaction. Behind the scenes, our licensed agents and support staff assist with showings, coordination, and paperwork to ensure nothing falls through the cracks and every step stays on track.

Our goal is simple: to help you achieve the best possible outcome. That often comes from leveraging our combined skill sets, proven systems, and - just as importantly - our availability. BUYER CONSULTATION

This is where we make a plan together. As your agent, I'm going to be asking you questions about your goals for purchasing home and any questions or concerns you may have related to buying. Please take a moment to think about those things before our consultation so that we can ensure we make the best use of our time together and address the most important issues.

I'll also be preparing materials for your review, including an overview of the buying process!

A few things to think about before we meet...

What is your ideal location?

What is a comfortable monthly payment for you?

What concerns do you have about buying?

Write these things down before we meet so we can talk through all the details!

MORTGAGE & LOAN PROCESS

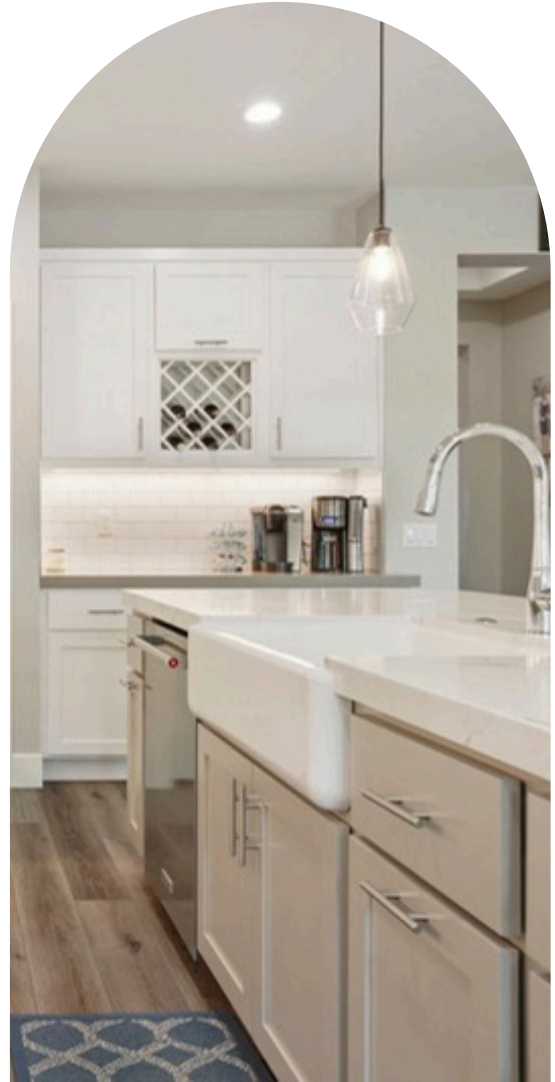

Before touring homes or falling in love with a property, getting pre-approved for a loan is one of the most important steps in the buying process! A pre-approval not only helps you understand what you can comfortably afford, but it also shows sellers that you're a serious, qualified buyer, which can make a huge difference in a competitive market like California.

Pre-Approval & Pre-Qualification are not the SAME!

These two terms are often used interchangeably, but they are not the same. A mortgage pre-qualification is an informal estimate of what a buyer might be able to borrow. It's typically based on self-reported information and does not involve verifying income, assets, or credit. While it can be a helpful starting point, a pre-qualification does not carry much weight when submitting an offer.

A mortgage pre-approval, on the other hand, is a much stronger and more reliable step. During the pre-approval process, a lender will review key financial documents such as bank statements, tax returns, employment verification, and a tri-merge credit report. Once reviewed, the lender issues a written pre-approval letter outlining the loan amount you're approved for. This tells sellers that your finances have already been vetted and that you're well-positioned to move forward.

While a pre-approval may take a bit more time than a pre-qualification, it is absolutely worth it. It helps prevent surprises, strengthens your offer, and allows us to confidently guide you through the home-buying process.

Our Trusted Local Lender Friends

To make this step as easy as possible, we're happy to provide you with a few local lending options. These are professionals we know, trust, and work closely with - lenders who communicate well, move quickly, and understand our local market. Reaching out to one of these trusted partners is a great first step toward a smooth and successful home purchase.

MAKING AN OFFER

Once you have found the property you want, we will write a purchase agreement!

While much of the agreement is standard, there are a few areas that we can negotiate:

The Price

- What you offer on a property depends on a number of factors including its condition, length of time on the market, buyer activity, and the urgency of the seller. While some buyers want to make a low offer just to see if the seller accepts, this often isn't a smart choice because the seller may be insulted and decide not to negotiate at all.

Contingency Periods

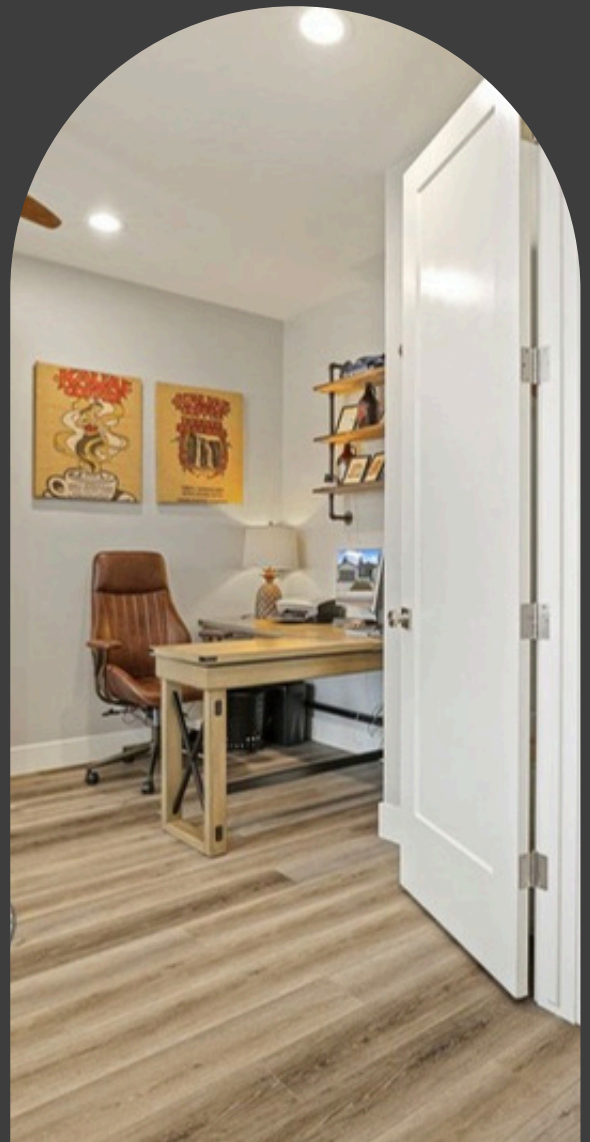

- Shortening your contingency timeframes helps your offer stand out by showing the seller your motivation level.

The Closing & Possession Date

- If you can be flexible on the closing date & possession date, the seller will be more apt to choose your offer over others.

Additional Personal Property

- Often, the seller plans on leaving major appliances in the home, however, which items stay or go is often a matter of negotiation.

CONTINGENCY PERIOD

In real estate, a "contingency" refers to a condition of the Agreement of Sale that needs to occur in order for the transaction to keep moving forward. As the buyer, there are many contingencies that you can choose to include in your contract.

Passing this period, if everything looks good at this point, there are just two more stages before closing: a title search and transfer of ownership.

By working closely with me and other industry experts, you'll be better able to understand what contingencies are all about, when they're most likely to be necessary, and what you can do to make sure you're in the best position possible for dealing with contingencies when they arise.

COMMON

01 Inspection Contingency

Every contract has a 17-day inspection contingency. This is where the buyer is able to do their due-diligence on the property with professional inspections.

02 Financing Contingency

Most contracts are also contingent on the buyer's financing. A seller is not likely to accept an offer without a pre-approval letter.

03 Appraisal Contingency

Inside the buyer's financing there is often an appraisal contingency. This means the buyer's financing is contingent upon the home appraising for the purchase price.

04 Home Sale Contingency

Some contracts are also contingent upon the buyer selling and closing on their current home. There will be additional paperwork and dates we abide by with this type of contingency.

CONTINGENCIES

CLOSING DAY

This is it! The big day!!! I've done this hundreds of times and I promise you, we'll get through it just fine. You'll be signing a lot of paperwork today, most of it pretty dull, all of it important! The good news is, it's all paperwork we'll have already reviewed. After you sign everything... the deal is closed once the following is done:

1. The lender has to process and fund the loan once signed loan documents have been received. Depending on time of day the loan funds, the title company may release the file to record the same day.
2. The deed isn't a legal document until it has been recorded by the county recorder's office. Once each party has signed and the loan has funded, the title company will release the file to record. This can take a few hours. The home is officially closed once it is recorded.

Once the deed records, we'll release keys to YOU; the new homeowner!

DO YOU NEED TO PAY A BUYER'S AGENT?

THE SHORT ANSWER IS MAYBE...

Sellers often offer a buyer's agent concession, however if for any reason, a seller is not offering this concession, the buyer will be responsible for paying the buyer's agent commission. Buyers face a LOT of upfront fees when buying a new home, so when a seller offers a buyer's agent concession, it does help keep the buyer's cost down.

My promise to you is this: I will always inform you when a listing is not offering a buyer's agent concession that way you can make an informed decision on how to proceed.

Taylor

what others ARE SAYING

HENRY W.

We knew Taylor only by name when we called to see if she would help us find an investment home to fulfill requirements of a 1031 Exchange. She was extremely knowledgeable, friendly and helpful in our house search. She sent many choices of homes in our desired category. Once a home was chosen she went to great lengths to answer every question, attend to every detail and keep us informed each step along the way. Even when she had to deal with ornery, uncompromising sellers she kept her cool and continued to smooth out any difficulties before they happened. We would absolutely refer friends and family to work with Taylor when they are looking to either buy or sell in this area.

CHRISTIN M.

We have now bought and sold 4 houses with Taylor. We enjoy working with her so much. She is kind, professional, detail-oriented, and efficient. So much so that we made the decision to sell our house and bought our dream home, in this market, in less than 2 months. We happily recommend her to our friends and family and look forward to working with her again.
